Public Artist Component - Estela DePaola Lerma

"When creating art all the surrounding environment becomes the subject matter to be transformed in new creatures. Lines, form, shape and volume generate a new style to represent reality, connecting the public with the artistic expression. My sculptures are based on everyday situations, ranging from pure nature to human related activities. The viewer projects his or her own interpretation to each piece of artwork, sometimes physically interacting with it or just observing it. A different perception of life arises to give place to many voices with multiple perspectives."
