

OPEN INFORMATION

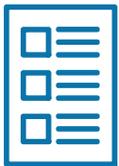

DYNAMIC. RELEVANT. USER-FRIENDLY.

Open Information Saint Paul, the City's new open data website, makes it easy for residents to view, sort, download, and understand public data.

The new site includes:

Charts, graphs, maps, and interactive data that you can view, click, sort, analyze, and explore to learn about Saint Paul. View our library of how-to videos if you are new to the site.

Data sets now available:

- Adopted capital and operating budgets
- Approved building permits
- Crime data
- Election turnout
- Liquor licenses
- Public buildings,
- Resident service requests
- Vacant buildings
- Workforce demographics
- More to come in the future!

Industry-leading partners supported this work, including Socrata on the website and the Sunlight Foundation via Bloomberg What Works Cities on the open data resolution that will go before City Council on April 27, 2016.

— visit Open Information Saint Paul today — information.stpaul.gov